

Anna R. Craft is an associate professor at UNC Greensboro, where she serves as Coordinator of Metadata Services in the University Libraries. She coordinates open access institutional repository services for the eleven-school NC DOCKS cohort (<http://libres.uncg.edu/ir/>), supports users of UNCG's open access journal installation, and helps ensure that the Libraries' resources (print and electronic) are discoverable and available for patrons worldwide. She started her library career at the North Carolina State University Libraries, served as Metadata Librarian at Western Carolina University, and earned her MSLS from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.
